The biggest achievement of working on my own, as well as the biggest struggle, was learning to manage risk and emotions. It took many losses to finally come to the point where I managed to gain both those skills.

Financial Analyst and Operation Management

Working at EUROFIT and Co. on several international project came with many obstacles, and the main problem lied in misscommunication, where multiple projects came to a halt and would not continue before the issues at hand would be fixed. That put a strain on the team as well as on the company due to the time limitations we had to abide by, and the whole matter wouldn't get solved unless the main issue was fixed. So after solving many of these situations, I found myself working under the CEO directly which put me in a leadership role for many offices that with time helped me become more decisive, dependent and aware of the small details that can be crucial.
