Summary

Mohamad Chreyteh is an award-winning journalist, filmmaker and digital storytelling trainer, specialised in covering current affairs, politics, conflict and terrorism, human-interest stories, minorities, refugees, and war reporting in the Middle East.

He's currently employed by the UN (UNRWA) as a communication advisor, and working as freelance filmmaker, reporter and producer for BBC World Service.

He recently worked as a Senior Journalist for BBC Xtra, a weekly magazine on BBC Arabic. News Producer for BBC News in English (UK / global), and Video Journalist for BBC World Service.

In July 2019 Mohamad joined the TechCamp trainers club, a US Department of State public diplomacy program.

Mohamad worked as Senior Producer and MENA Editor at Transterra Media, until August 2016, and Video Reporter at Agence France Presse (AFP), until September 2013. And Middle East Producer and video journalist at NTN24 and RCN, Colombia. At Transterra Media Mohamad earned a very good experience in disrupting technology, startup companies and contributed to building online platforms that evolved the media production industry.

Mohamad produced and co-produced reports and digital content for top level international broadcasters and websites including CNN, France 24, TF1, ZDF, ABC News, BBC, AOL, Daily Mail, al-Jazeera and al-Arabia. Among the reports are features titled "Life Under ISIS Controlled Raqqa", and "The Hannibal Gaddafi Files".

He interacted and produced digital media content for top level international NGOs including ICRC, WFP, MSF, UNHCR, IRC, HRW, DRC, and many others. His written work has been published on international news websites including The Huffington Post Arabic, Mail Online, The Diplomatic Observer and Christian Science Monitor.

Mohamad's field experience includes work in conflict zones and hostile environments. He is HEFAT trained by "1st Option Safety Group" and holds certificates in 'hostile environment management for journalists' from the International Federation of Journalists (FIJ) and Trauma Training for Journalists (TTJ).
