Education

Nov 2019 - Present

Computer Science.
Cnam/University, Beirut.

I am Ali Naser El Dine, a third year student at Cnam University, majoring in computer programming. This specialty includes coding, processing networks, in addition to developing websites.
And also in an important, basic and general way in the computer operating system and general and simple overviews with some experience in computer hardware.

Employment

As for work, to be honest, I've never formally worked on a job related to my specialty before. All the experience and information I have is a personal effort in addition to the information I gain from the university, and I always strive to develop my experiences, and of course I need a job opportunity that may be my first experience officially, and I am very excited about this experience in the specialty that I love .
