COMMUNICATION

Through my long and hard experience working and selling, I gained a lot of confidence and communication skills which are the most important factors in business. Those are the paths to people's minds. Having a strong talking, convincing, confident voice gives you the chance to improve your relationship with people and makes them know that you're aware of what's happening and have full knowledge about it.

LEADERSHIP

Ever since high school, up until now, I was always the person whose job is to plan events where losses, gains, budgets, places, and many other things are considered and calculated carefully resulting in successful and fun activities with everyone being happy and satisfied.
