- Offers app which is a platform that was made to allow business to create and distribute promotional offers to potential customers. Customers can typically access the offers through the application or through other marketing channels, such as email or social media.

Image Processing

Beirut Arab University

Aug 2022 – Dec 2022

- A sudoku solver program using OpenCV python and deep learning OCR detection. It detects a sudoku board from an image and then solves it. The program will detect a sudoku board in an image then extract only the board. Then it detects each given number from that board and then it solves the board. After solving the board, it puts the solved numbers in that original image at the same position where the board was empty.
