A motivated and personable student perusing mathematics and the American University of Beirut. Eager to join the AUB outdoors community to help establish a successful event and assist in developing a healthy environment for people to enjoy. Strong theoretical background in being a standout leader, skilled at organizing events and in advertising progress on social media.

Experience

- Volunteering: I have volunteered in helping local community develop marketing material to promote a series of garage sale events by designing posters and setting up their Instagram group.
- I have also written professional product reviews for a local technology website.
- Turned my brother's friend into an Apple customer by effectively communicating the advantages of IOS over Android for his purposes after years of him buying Android products.
- Organized and led games and activities for groups of children at my school (LWIS CIS) for community service hours.
- Completed an online training course on effective marketing on Udemy.

Education

American University of Beirut

I am currently enrolled for the Spring semester of my first year at AUB. I am a mathematics major however I am taking computer science course as I will be transferring after Spring semester.

Activities

I am a part of both the hiking club and the gaming development club. Both clubs require a lot of socializing and cooperating with other teammates; this has helped me enhance my social skills as well as make more new friends who are outside of my day-to-day routine.

Certificates

In the year 2016-2017, I participated in the UCMAS program and finished all 10 levels. I was also qualified to the international competition done at the UN and was all over television. I was the top 7th position in my group with people between the ages of 7 to 18. I won a certificate of participation and another for being placed in the top 10 in Lebanon.

I also have a Udemy certificate for the Marketing 101 class I took during the covid lockdown.
