EXPERIENCE

Academic Projects & Practical Experience

Throughout my bachelor's degree in Computer Science, I gained comprehensive knowledge in multiple areas, including web development, software engineering, database management, and data analysis. I contributed to the development of a full-stack web application and participated in the design and implementation of a software project, following the complete software development lifecycle, from requirements gathering and analysis to deployment.

I have not yet worked in a professional company within my field; however, I have gained practical experience through academic projects and independent work.
