Max Miedinger

Max Miedinger was a Swiss typeface designer, best known for creating "Helvetica" in 1957. He worked with Eduard Hoffmann at the Haas Type Foundry to develop the iconic sans-serif typeface, which became one of the most widely used fonts around the modern world.

Project where we had to design a Typography poster using any font of our choice.

Typography:

Project where we had to design a poster for a singer coming to Lebanon.

Packaging:

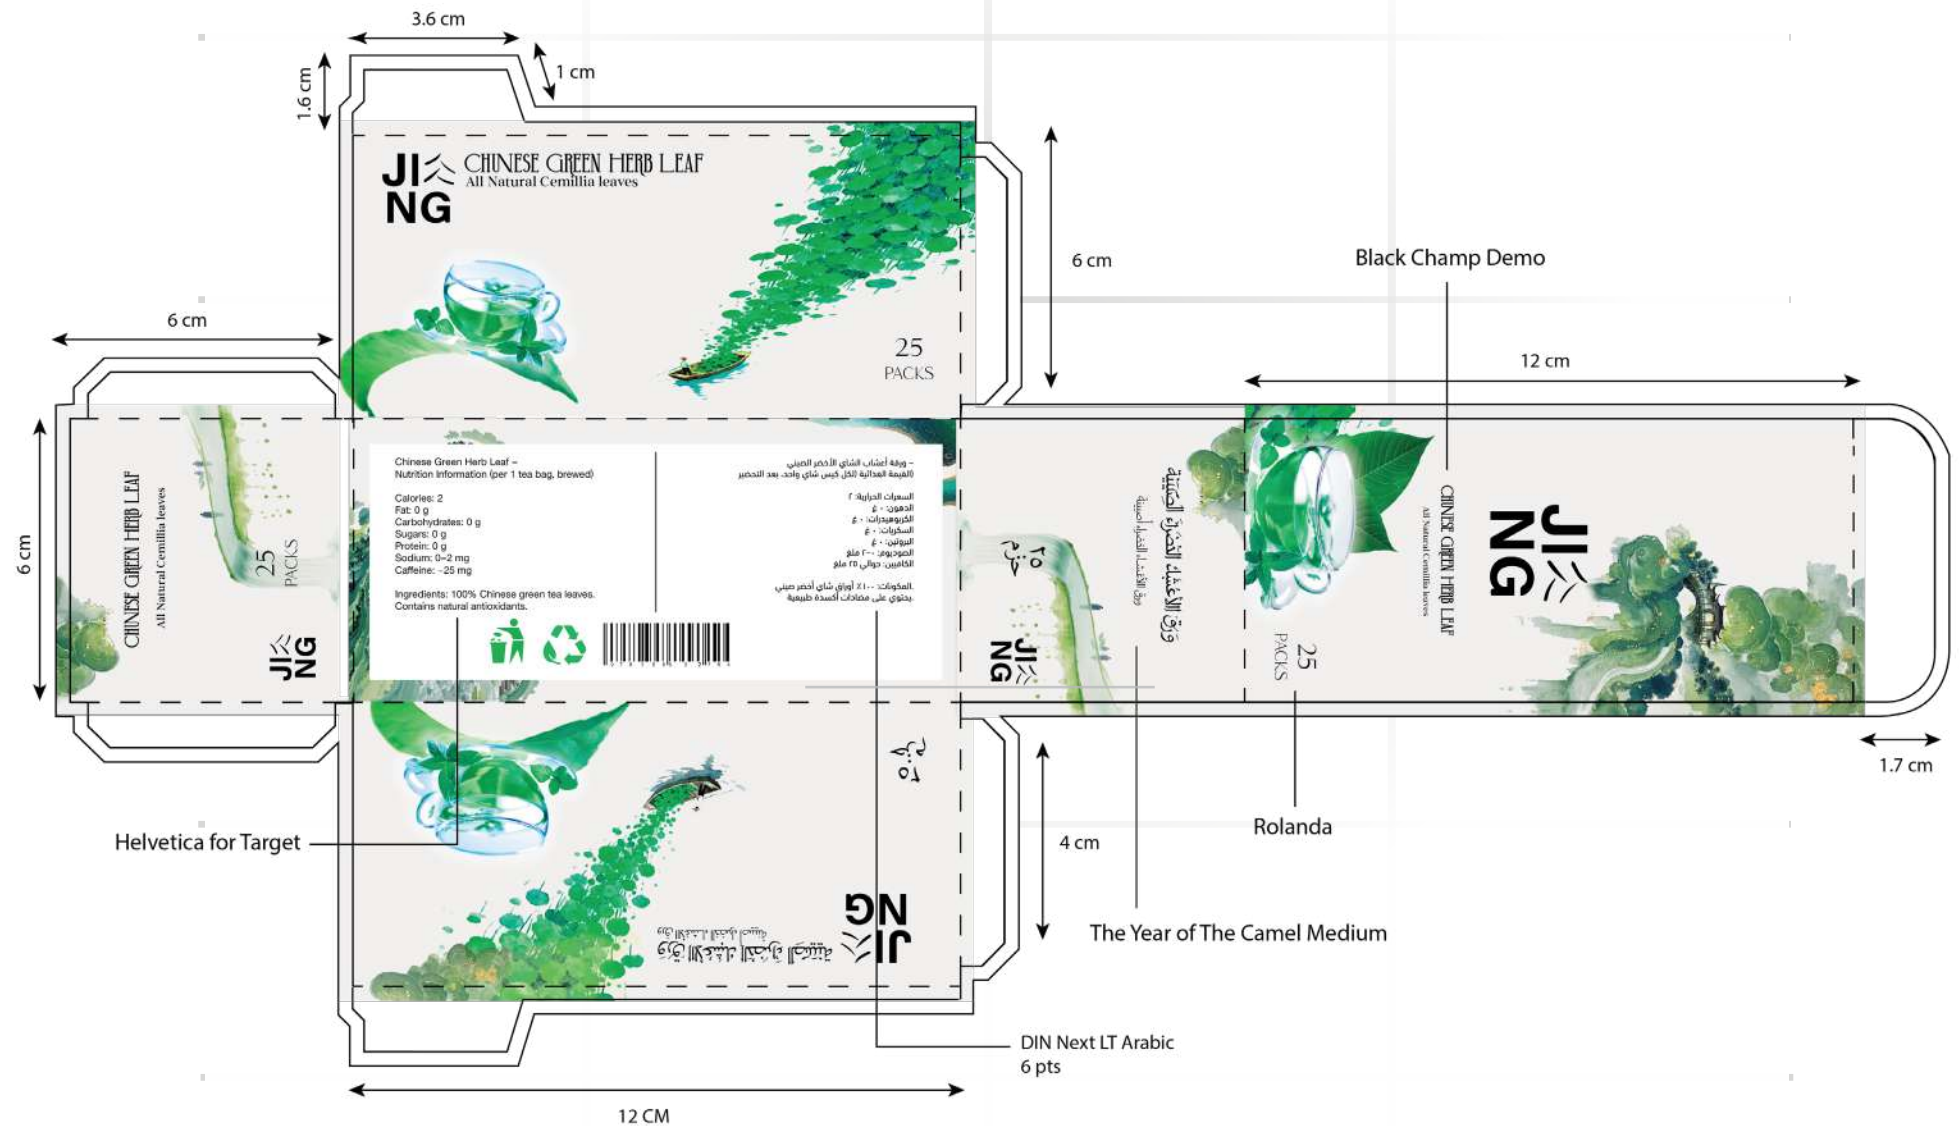

Packaging project where we had to design 2 different sized Tea boxes, each with their own die cut, bleed and distinct design.
